libraries: comic books, graphic novels, storyboards, and more tangentially, graffiti and sticker art. Although patrons may not differentiate between graphic novels and comics, it is important for librarians, at least in collection-development terms, to make the distinction. Comics, in production, publication, and consumption, are essentially serials.

The Aesthetics and Academics of Graphic Novels and Comics graphic novel, a longer and more artful version of the comic book bound as a “real” book, is increasingly popular, available, and meaningful. Library media specialists have been in the forefront advocating graphic novels. For example, Maureen Mooney declares, “If you acquire graphic novels, young adults will come.” Mooney
